The Diamondhead Fire District recently received an $18,275 grant from Firehouse Subs Public Safety Foundation.

According to a release from Firehouse Subs, personnel will be "better equipped to keep all community members safe."

The funds will be used to purchase two TNT hydraulic rescue tools, which fulfills a "critical" need within the department, the release states.

"We are committed to helping organizations such as Diamondhead Fire District continue their lifesaving work within local communities," Firehouse Subs Public Safety Foundation executive director Robin Peters said in the release. "We are honored to be able to award this grant and do our part to ensure that the city of Diamondhead is safer for everyone, including first responders." TNT hydraulic rescue tools are primarily used for "rapid emergency extrication and rescue purposes," the release states.

"These battery operated units will give Diamondhead Fire District the ability to cut stronger modern-day alloys found in today's vehicles and aircraft and will us to start extrication quicker and better serve the community and the lives we strive to protect," the release states.

This grant was one of 96 Firehouse Subs Public Safety Foundation grants, which are awarded to public safety organizations throughout the country during the most recent grant application period. The total amount of grant funding awarded this period was $1.8 million.

My Grandmother gathered her chips

BY MAURICE SINGLETON
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Editor's Note: Maurice Singleton is a veteran educator, journalist and long-time contributor to The Sea Coast Echo. Today, in honor of Black History Month, he shares with us a story of his grandmother's contributions to the Civil Rights movement.

I thought I knew my fraternal grandmother pretty well, at least as well as a close grandson should know his grandmother. I use to go fishing and crabbing with her on the sea wall in Bay St. Louis and Waveland as well as in her secret spots in the Lakeshore and Clermont Harbor areas.

Mrs. Ninnie, as she was commonly known, was a popular midwife and a supporter of families. The reason I say supporter of families is because she delivered gallon cans of spaghetti, red and white beans and other foods to whomever needed help after the students and brothers at St. Stanislaus were fed. My grandfather had worked as a janitor at St. Stanislaus.

My grandmother's role as a midwife is what I really want to talk about. I had ridden with her on several of her follow-up visits to check on her patients. One visit stands out, a trip to Logtown several days after she had delivered a baby there. I was probably about nine or ten years old, and the trip was memorable for two reasons: First of all, I met Doug and Mandy Wilkerson, siblings of Vivian Rosemond Singleton and her husband Mose Singleton raised nine children. They resided in the 500 block of Carroll Avenue. Vivian "Mrs. Ninnie" died at the age of 92 in November of 1987. She is survived by one daughter, Mildred Vivian Cooper, who lives in Riverside, California, and a host of grandchildren, great grandchildren, and great-great grandchildren.

the newborn. I believe Doug was a year or two older than me, and Mandy was my age and on the same grade level. We played outside and feasted on the biggest cookies I had ever seen while my grandmother did her midwife work.

The second reason the trip was memorable was because my grandmother nose-dived her cream-colored 1956 Chevrolet sedan with the navy blue top into a deep ditch as she turned into their yard. Mr. Wilkerson and another man pulled the car out of the ditch in no time and without any stress. I can still picture the smiles and tons of admiration the entire family had for “Mrs. Ninnie.”

So, this past October, the Knights of Peter Claver from St. Rose de Lima were partnering with the Knights of Columbus from Our Lady of the Gulf to clean up St. Mary’s Cemetery on Necaie Avenue when I learned something about my grandmother that I didn’t know. We were wrapping up our day of cleanup when I came across a lady who was standing in front of the grave of her sister near the right side rear of the cemetery. We exchanged greetings, and she began to recall very fond memories of her sister.

We introduced ourselves, and she recognized my last name. “Are you related to Mrs. Singleton, the midwife?” Mrs. Cindy Schoonmaker asked. “She was my grandmother, my dad’s mom,” I said.

“Mrs. Singleton delivered five or six of my brothers and sisters,” she said. “My mom had thirteen children, and I think she delivered most of them.”

And therein is the latest lesson I learned about my grandmother: I had no idea that her patients went beyond poor black mothers. As divided as the races were, particularly in the 1940s, ‘50s and ‘60s, it was unimaginable for me to reconcile the notion that some of her patients were white.

Mrs. Schoonmaker went on to tell me that her family was “very poor,” which lined up with the Samaritan that my grandmother was: she helped anyone who needed help.

Which brings me to the most valued memory I have of my grandmother: During the summer of 1961, my grandmother took a carload of her grandchildren on a crabbing expedition to her favorite spot on a clay-covered road along the railroad tracks in Clermont Harbor. After we caught a couple of baskets of crabs, she took us back to her house and fed us. Then she loaded us up in the ‘56 Chevrolet and drove east on Carroll Avenue towards Beach Boulevard.

She parked the Chevrolet on the beach side of the street and ordered us out of the car. Now that might not sound so startling as you read this today, but believe me, it was on this particular hot Friday afternoon back then.

We followed my grandmother down to the sand beach where a number of families had gathered with children splashing around in the shallow water and older swimmers wading further out. It seemed like all of sudden, the splashers and waders had moved to the sand, and we were the only people in the water. A photographer for one of the newspapers arrived as sirens could be heard approaching.

“Turn around so I can take your picture,” the photographer said in a friendly tone.

“Mrs. Ninnie,” the police began. “Now you know better than this. Come on and just go home.”

“I’m not going anywhere,” my grandmother scolded. “I pay taxes on Carroll Avenue; I can take my grandchildren swimming on Carroll Avenue.”

So we didn’t get out of the water. Instead, we walked in the shallow water to the screaming, heckling, and hateful horn blows of slow-moving traffic all the way to the St. Stanislaus pier, where my dad, two of his brothers and my grandfather met us.

“Ninnie, what were you thinking?” one of her sons scolded her.

“She’s doing what she needed to do,” my dad warned his brother. “She was doing what she had to do.”

I have thought about what my dad had told his brother many times over the years, and I have had a different take on what that meant. After my conversation with Mrs. Schoonmaker, and figuring the somewhat light warning from the police officer, telling her to get out of the water and “go home,” I have

Two Bay-Waveland Middle School students charged with felonies after weapons found at school

ECHO STAFF

The School Resource Division of the Hancock County Sheriff's Office on Thursday responded to an "inadvertent fire alarm" at Bay-Waveland Middle School. Deputies were then made aware that a student had a firearm in his/her possession, a release from the Bay-Waveland School District states.

Deputies immediately secured the campus; identified the student involved; located a handgun in his/her possession, the release states.

"During the investigation, deputies were alerted to another student that received a second handgun from the previously detained student, and they were able to immediately locate this second handgun which had been discarded in a trash can," the release states.

According to the release, both Mississippi law and the BWSD have a "zero tolerance stance for weapons on school property."

"Both juveniles were charged with felony crimes for possessing a firearm on school property," the release states. "The primary offender will be charged with an additional felony crime for providing a weapon to another individual on school property. Both juveniles were transported to Hancock County Youth Court for further action."

District officials notified parents of the incident via the school's call out system, the release states.

"While the incident was unfortunate, we are very thankful that no students or staff members were harmed," BWSD Dr. Sandra Reed said in the release. "School administrators and HCSO worked well together to quickly locate the weapons and detain the students. This incident emphasizes the importance of constant reminders to all students that it's critically important to let school officials know when a safety issue exists — particularly ones that involves a firearm."

"handled all by the school and district administration working well with their law enforcement partners."

"These relationships are vitally important to ensuring the safety of our school campuses and we are fortunate that this was resolved with the best possible outcome," Favre said in the release. "As always, we will continue to look at any situation on our campuses to ensure we are working to promote a safe and orderly learning environment for our students."

Hancock County Sheriff Ricky Adam said he was "very pleased with the timely response by our school resource deputies who worked to contain the situation."

"During this investigation, we learned that other students may have been aware that these weapons were on campus as early as their bus ride to school that morning, but these students did not report this to school officials," Adam said in the release. "I think it is important that parents have these conversations with their children to know that when they are away of these potentially dangerous situations, it's okay for them to speak up immediately so that law enforcement can help resolve them in a safe way."

Because the students are juveniles, their names will not be released.

in Salem Village, Massachusetts, claimed to be possessed by the devil and accused several local women of witchcraft. As a wave of hysteria spread throughout colonial Massachusetts, a special court convened in Salem to hear the cases; the first convicted witch, Bridget Bishop, was hanged that June.”

There were 18 others hanged for “witchcraft” and more than 150 more men, women, and children accused, the website states.

The belief that the devil gave certain humans the power to harm others in return for their loyalty emerged in Europe in the 14th century and was “widespread” in colonial New England, the website states.

“In addition, the harsh realities of life in the rural Puritan community of Salem Village at the time included the after-effects of a British war with France in the American colonies in 1689, a recent smallpox epidemic, fears of attacks from neighboring Native American tribes and a long-standing rivalry with the more affluent community of Salem Town,” the website states. “Amid these simmering tensions, the Salem witch trials would be fueled by residents’ suspicions of and resentment toward their neighbors, as well as their fear of outsiders.”

In 1692, nine-year-old Elizabeth Parris and 11-year-old Abigail Williams, started having fits, which included violent contortions and uncontrollable outbursts of screaming. Several other girls in the community began exhibiting the symptoms, and thus many were accused of “bewitching” the girls, the website states.

Several of the accused “witches” like Tituba, confessed in hopes of saving themselves from conviction, not because they were witches.

In 1697, the Massachusetts General Court declared a day of fasting for the tragedy of the Salem witch trials and the court later deemed the trials unlawful, the website states. Too little, too late, I say.

There was a study published in Science magazine in 1976 which sought to scientifically explain the strange afflictions suffered by the “bewitched” in 1692. The study cited the fungus ergot (found in rye, wheat, and other cereals), which “toxicologists say can cause symptoms such as delusions, vomiting, and muscle spasms,” the website states.

The Salem witch trials is but one of many instances of hateful periods in America’s history.

There was no proof of witchcraft and the tests conducted during trials were almost laughable if the outcome wasn’t so dire for those accused.

One test was called witch cakes.

“The witch cake was a supernatural dessert used to identify suspected evildoers,” the website states. “In cases of mysterious illness or possession, witch-hunters would take a sample of the victim’s urine, mix it with rye-meal and ashes and bake it into a cake. This stomach-turning concoction was then fed to a dog — the familiars — or animal helpers of witches — in the hope that the beast would fall under its spell and reveal the name of the guilty sorcerer.”

Certain physical imperfections or birthmarks were also used against the accused.

It makes me cringe to think that thousands upon thousands have been killed in the name of “God.”

And for what? Because other humans act differently? Because they look different? Because they have different beliefs? Because they have a certain birthmark or deformity?

Although I admit, sometimes things happen in life without any tangible explanation. Do I think it’s witchcraft? Nah. But after watching shows like “Penny Dreadful,” I often wonder what it would be like to have certain powers. No, I wouldn’t sell my soul to the devil. But, use those powers for good.

But we as humans already have power, don’t we?

The power to treat others with kindness, no matter how different they are. We are all unique and bring something different to the table. The power to not murder someone because of their differences.

I’ve always felt empathy for Frankenstein’s creature, not the doctor, who pushed the boundaries of science too far and then rejected his final product.

The creature was brought into a cruel world. A world that wasn’t ready for someone like him. Someone with a clean slate who wants to explore the world, but also desperately wants to be loved.

And he is rejected from society and thus, turns to evil. How can I blame him?

I believe that we are a product of our environments, in most cases. That’s why I always like to read the back stories of most serial killers to find out what their early lives were like. In most cases, it wasn’t a good upbringing and often riddled with unchecked abuse from parents and others.

If we have a hateful society, then that will only breed more evil. The true monsters are those that cast hate onto that which they do not understand or perceive as different.

Society will shun people for their looks, mannerisms, addictions, mental illnesses, color of their skin, and then seek to punish them when the outcasts have had enough and fight back in one way, shape or form. Yeah, I think we need to fix how society treats people.

Personally, I would much rather spend my time with Frankenstein’s creature than the people who hanged the “witches.”

“Who knows why we were taught to fear the witches and not those who burned them alive?” — Author unknown.

- Bring it to the /Bay St. Louis Half-Marathon & Triathlon - supporting local first responders;
- and the Bay St. Louis Turkey Trot 5K - supporting the food bank in Hancock County and the Friends of the Animal Shelter.

In fact, her love of animals was second only to her love of fitness. From the time she was a little girl, she rescued any animal that she could. She was an advocate for pet adoption and her dream was to open an animal rescue center. She was also the race director for many other races that supported St. Clare Church, Our Lady of the Gulf, and St. Rose de Lima.

A mom, daughter, sister, aunt, and friend - to say she was loved and will be missed is a gross understatement. Our world has forever shifted with her loss and may her energy and love be with us forever.

Rest In Peace, with our Savior in Heaven, with Jesus and your loved ones that rejoice to be with you once again.

A Mass will be held at St. Rose de Lima Church in Bay St. Louis, MS in late March 2021.

In lieu of flowers the family request donations be made to the Friends of the Animal Shelter in Hancock County www.friendsoftheanimalshelter.org

Friends of the Animal Shelter in Hancock County receives “I Care for Animals” car tag grant

SEA COAST ECHO

The Friends of the Animal Shelter in Hancock County has been awarded a $3,000 “I Care for Animals” car tag grant from the Mississippi Board of Animal Health. The funds will be used as part of their spay/neuter program.

The Friends organization was established in 2001 with a goal of improving the lives of citizens and their animals in Hancock County. They work to reduce the number of unwanted animals by providing free spay/neuter services to pet owners in Hancock County.

More information about the Friends organization may be found at friendsoftheanimalshelter.org or FB-Friends of the Animal Shelter.

The “I Care for Animals” Car Tag

Program offers an opportunity for Mississippians to purchase a specialty license plate which benefits animals around the state. The license plates may be purchased at county tax collector’s offices.

The proceeds from these purchases go into a state animal care fund which is distributed to animal shelters and humane organizations which make application and meet the criteria for award.

The “I Care for Animals” Car Tag Program is in its eighteenth year of assisting animal organizations primarily with spay/neuter programs.

Cities, counties and nonprofit animal organizations which are interested in applying for “I Care for Animals” grant money can find more information at www.mbah.ms.gov.

ASTRO CAMP® activities are aligned to Next Generation Science standards and include engineering challenges. Resources are particularly focused on reaching learners in under-served and under-represented communities.

The collaboration offers real-world opportunities for every student to join in, and contribute to, NASA science missions, enhance science understanding, and build NASA connections, all with a goal of inspiring lifelong learners and explorers. It highlights current and past NASA missions, while using hands-on activities to expand STEM interest and activities in astrophysics, Earth science, heliophysics and planetary science. The approach seeks to teach camp participants to work together in order to complete missions, relying on methodology developed during 29 years of ASTRO CAMP® sessions held at Stennis Space Center.

The theme for this year’s ASTRO CAMP® is “We Go ... Finding our Place in Space with NASA Science!” The program highlights the Artemis generation, with NASA Moon to Mars Next Gen STEM modules and various science collaboration opportunities, such as the R.O.A.D.S. (Rover Observation and Drone Survey) on Asteroids Challenge. The R.O.A.D.S. on Asteroids challenge focuses on developing and executing a mission to the asteroid Vesta through the use of mapping skills, a robotic rover, and drone, while searching for signs of life. Additional resources include PLANETS, STEM activities from Northern Arizona University, and access to NASA subject matter experts.

ASTRO CAMP® provides collaborators with professional development, the 2021 ASTRO CAMP® Facilitators Guide, activity supply lists, on-line resources, NASA completion certificates templates, and the on-line support of education specialists (as needed). Collaborating organizations must provide: 1) a program leader/facilitator, 2) support staff, 3) facilities, 4) supplies/materials and 5) program management for each camp site. Program leaders and facilitators must take part in a one-day Educational Professional Development workshop provided by NASA education specialists in order to be designated as an official NASA 2021 ASTRO CAMP® Community Partners Site.

Are you totally honest with God?

BY GARY ANDREWS

Not long ago as I was studying my Sunday School lesson, the question came up "Have you ever felt comfortable being totally honest with God in prayer, even acknowledging your deepest fears?" The writer of this lesson was expounding on the fears of Jacob as he and his families were returning to his homeland and would be facing his estranged brother Esau. Twenty years earlier Jacob, whose name means trickster, had deceived Esau out of his birthright and his blessing from his father Isaac. Ultimately Esau was upset and vowed to kill Jacob. It has been said that absence makes the heart grow fonder. I have also heard and maintained that being apart gives everyone a chance to realize and think about the problems they have had with others, and that being apart, sometimes, will heal many wounds. Finger pointing and retaliation are quick responses and many times the one reacting the quickest is the one that will suffer the most. Even if you have been wronged by your brother in a dishonest and deceitful way, allow God to control the situation, because He is the one in charge. For the one that created the problems and caused the hurt to his brother, God will bring change to his heart and, hopefully, this brother will accept responsibility and make things right. Having a heavy heart knowing that we have wronged someone is worse than facing the consequences of that brother in the heat of the moment. When we are burdened with a heavy heart is the time when we go to our knees and talk with the Lord. Even then, are we open and honest with God, admitting our needs and our fears? All of us need to realize whether we are open and honest with God or not, He knows everything. Confession relieves so much tension and stress. The Bible speaks to us through Leviticus 25:17: "Do not take advantage of each other but fear your God. I am the Lord your God." Jacob realized his needs and fears and the Lord heard his prayers. The time apart from Esau healed a lot of wounds and the brothers were reunited once again. The Lord will hear our prayers also. Everyday we need to get on our knees and talk to Him and He will guide us. We need to be open and hear what the Lord tells us. Prayer: Thank you Lord for your love and guidance. I praise you in all that I do and ask that you be with me in all my thoughts.

Emily de Montluzin Foreign Language Scholarship Board raises the amount of annual scholarship to $5,000

SEA COAST ECHO

The Board of Directors of the Emily de Montluzin Foreign Language Scholarship has announced that the amount of the annual Foreign Language Scholarship has been increased from $3,000 to $5,000, beginning with the 2021 award.

A bequest from the late Emily de Montluzin, who died on October 20, 2020, plus numerous gifts from friends and former students in her memory, have made possible the near doubling of the amount of the annual scholarship.

The Emily de Montluzin Foreign Language Scholarship was established in 1983 by former students and friends of Emily Hosmer de Montluzin on the occasion of her retirement as a Latin and French teacher at Bay Senior High School in Bay St. Louis, Mississippi.

The scholarship is awarded each year to a graduating senior from any one of the high schools in Hancock County who has excelled in the study of a foreign language and plans to continue that study in a college or university of his or her choice. To date it has been presented to thirty-four exemplary foreign language students.

“Teaching was the love of Emily de Montluzin’s life,” said her daughter, Lorraine de Montluzin. “She would be so pleased that the scholarship established in her honor has reached this important milestone and will now be able to provide substantially more financial assistance to outstanding foreign language students in Hancock County.”

Joseph Wusnack, President of the Scholarship Board, added, “Emily de Montluzin spent many years as a teacher with the goal of thrusting students forward into the career path best for them. This scholarship, which bears her name, continues that goal.”

The Board has announced that all applications from qualified students must be postmarked no later than March 15 for consideration for the 2021 award.

ity and protect consumers. It also helps markets function by giving consumers the confidence to trust a service provider. Just like you want to be confident that the used car you’re looking at won’t break down and leave you stranded, you want to know that your physician has been to medical school and won’t harm you.

Yet, over the past few decades, occupational licensing has expanded from these professions that carry a risk of injury or even death, and into professions that do not impact consumer safety.

In these cases, licensing laws can serve as a barrier to entry, rather than protecting consumers. The training and education process makes it more difficult for people to enter the field. For consumers, this means higher prices and fewer professionals to choose from.

Finally, the House passed House Bill 1303, which would improve healthcare access. Like the U.S. as a whole, Mississippi is facing a shortage of physicians. Over 90 percent of the counties in the state face a shortage of primary care. This means that patients are forced to wait longer and travel further to receive care. Low-income urban centers and rural areas alike suffer.

This bill would expand the scope of practice for nurse practitioners, allowing them to provide more care. Currently, NPs can practice on their own, but they have to sign a collaborative agreement with a physician. The NP pays thousands of dollars each year, and the physician reviews 10 percent of their cases each month. The purpose of this law is to protect the patient. But in practice this oversight is limited and after the fact. But it does make it more expensive for NPs to practice on their own.

HB 1303 would end the requirement for these agreements for experienced NPs. Mississippi would join 22 other states, Washington DC, and the Veteran’s Administration in letting NPs practice to their full training and ability.

NPs get master’s degrees and undergo extensive training. This reform would allow them to use that training to help patients receive high-quality care.

Mississippi is a great place to live and work. However, some well-intentioned laws and regulations make things more difficult than it needs to be. Luckily, the state legislature is taking steps to reform these areas. By breaking down barriers to people moving into the state, entering certain professions with low risk of harm, and expanding NP scope of practice to meet healthcare shortages, the House has taken concrete steps to improve Mississippi and make 2021 a much better year.

Follow tips for good container gardening

Almost any kind of container can be used to make a container garden.

DR. GARY R. BACHMAN
SERVICE

You may have figured out by now that I am passionate growing plants in containers. Everything in my coastal Mississippi landscape and garden grows in some form of container. Growing in containers gives me the sense of control I want in the garden. I use a variety of containers: black nursery pots in sizes up to 25 gallons; various sizes of terra cotta (I love the way these will patina through years of use); salad tables (yes, these are containers); and, of course, my beloved commercially available self-watering container garden systems. I always promote container gardening as being easy, and it is. But gardeners need to know that it is different than growing plants in the ground. If you follow these tips, you may find you love growing in containers as much as I do. First and foremost, growing in containers requires using the correct “soil,” which isn’t soil all. In fact, there’s no soil in the correct container mix. These are composed of organic components like peat moss, coir fiber or bark, and inorganic components like vermiculite and perlite. I like to use commercial bagged container mixes that have been engineered for optimum physical characteristics and great plant performance. They are found under a variety of trade names, but each of these is similar in its basic recipe. One bit of misadvice that runs rampant on the Internet is to add gravel or other materials to the bottoms of your containers to increase drainage. It just doesn’t work. You’ll have to trust me on this because the science behind why it doesn’t work is lengthy and involves polar attraction between molecules and overcoming the force of gravity. Proper watering is important. Since a container is effectively self-contained, you must consistently water based on the particular requirements of the plants you are growing. Never just apply a splash of water on the container; keep watering until you see water flow from the holes in the bottom of the container. Depending on location, such as a porch or patio, you may need a saucer under the container to catch the drainage. Fertilization is another important consideration. Many of the commercial container mixes have some added fertilizer, which is beneficial in getting plants off to a good start, but it is not nearly enough to sustain satisfactory growth through the entire season. I always feed my container plants with controlled-release fertilizer at planting, and I supplementally feed with water-soluble fertilizer through the growing season. One of the fun aspects of growing in containers is picking out the container itself. You can go old school like I do and use classic terra cotta. There’s also a large selection of glazed ceramics that would fit into any design scheme. These containers can be very heavy, so you may decide to look for containers made out of foam-like materials that look every bit like their heavier cousins. I also like to grow in the basic, black plastic pots, which is probably a carry-over from my nursery and greenhouse background. While very functional, the black plastic container is very dull. Painting is an easy way to jazz up and accessorize these basic containers. I like to use the textured spray paints that result in a stone-like appearance. The selection of containers becomes limitless. Container gardening is a fun way to enjoy your garden and landscape, and using these tips will go a long way to help you be successful in this style of garden.

The Hail Mary

I had to fish Super Bowl Sunday. Considering I'm usually running charters on Saturdays and Sundays, and asleep by 7pm I seldom get to watch football games anyway. It was a last minute booked trip from my old buddy Mr Charlie, from Tennessee. He was in town to go way offshore, in hopes of catching a big tuna on a fly rod. The weather was less than perfect for that, and his offshore trip was canceled (rightfully so). Plan-B was a trip to the Louisiana Marsh with me.

It was a little choppy going across, but we made good time. The cloud cover broke, and it turned out to be a really nice day, for what we were doing. The

Shore Thing Fishing Report

By Capt. Sonny Schindler

only problem was, the fish were GONE. We checked 3 or 4 of my go to A#1 shallow redfish ponds and they were absolutely void of life. The water was clear, and we could see everything, the bait and reds just weren't there. I had been in one of these ponds a few weeks before, and it was full of fish and bait. When I say we saw nothing, with the exception of 2 crabs and some Gar, for 6 HOURS we saw NOTHING!

It was getting late, and we had about 2 hours before sunset. The water had risen considerably. The high water was one thing I haven't been able to utilize in weeks. We made one last stop, and pushed deeper into an area than I'd ever been before. Mr Charlie never stopped casting. The water turned dirty, and we couldn't see but a couple of inches. I was out of options. We made one last turn into a lagoon with numerous drains pouring into it. It just looked too perfect. I stopped the boat, and put a dead shrimp under a popping cork. I think the second cast caught a small redfish. Mr Charlie put away his fly rod and picked up another spinning set up. He went on to catch almost 20 redfish in a row. Most were small, but we weren't keeping fish anyway. He was catching them fast as I could tag and release them. He even picked his fly rod back up, and caught the last two before we called it day. We raced the sun, and got back to Bayou Caddy before it set. I got home long after dark, right before the Super Bowl halftime show began. Sometimes you just gotta throw that Hail Mary and hope for the best.

As Always, have fun and be safe

Mr. Charlie Smith from Knoxville, Tennessee. We were red fishing in the Louisiana Marsh, 9 miles south of Bayou Caddy, MS.

Weather delays start of basketball playoffs

BY JOSEPH W. GEX, II
STAFF WRITER

The crazy and chaotic arctic weather blast that covered the area for the better part of last week forced a delay of the high school basketball playoffs.

After everything thawed out and travel was made possible, the playoffs got underway about five days delayed.

The delay did not thwart the Pirates of Pass Christian who swept both first round games. The Bay High Lady Tigers upended Florence while the Lady Hawks stopped Oak Grove. The Tigers of Bay High stumbled in their first round.

On Thursday, February 18, the Lady Pirates hosted the Lady Tigers of Northeast Jones in a first round matchup.

Pass Christian made quick work of the visiting team jumping out 13-3 in the first period and extending that lead to 23-5 at intermission.

Pass Christian head coach Greta Ainsworth commented, “We got into some foul trouble and I was forced to go deep into the bench. But, the girls responded and the younger players got some valuable game time. Winning the division gives you the opportunity to play at home the first two rounds so we need to take advantage of the opportunity.”

The Lady Pirates (14-10) disposed of the Lady Tigers 48-31 in the second half.

Pass Christian was led by Rayven Obillo with 14 points and eight steals while Kallie Wilson added eight points.

The Lady Pirates will host Greene County tonight at 6 p.m. in second round action.

In other first round girls games, the Hancock Lady Hawks traveled to Oak Grove and beat the Lady Warriors 42-36 to advance to the second round against Brandon tonight.

The Bay High Lady Tigers traveled to Florence and beat the Lady Eagles 41-24 to advance to a second round game against Raymond tonight.

In first round boys action, the Pirates defeated Mendenhall 74-44 in a game that was postponed seven days due to weather and a tragic happening within the student body last week at Mendenhall when two students were killed in an automobile accident.

The Pirates (17-7) opened a 17-5 lead in the first period and extended that to 42-17 by halftime.

In the second period, Mendenhall made a surge early but Zay Chamberlain scored seven points in the final 2:24 of the period to suppress the Tigers.

Chamberlain led the Pirates with 17 points followed by Dillon Woods with 16 points, Da’Merlan Walker with 10, and Darion Lee with 10 points.

Pass Christian head coach Buddy Kennedy stated, “Except for us getting beat off the dribble a few times, I thought we played well especially on defense. Mendenhall is an athletic team that, like many teams North of us, have had to deal with a host of problems associated with the weather. Not to mention the tragic car wreck with some of their students last week. They are dealing with a lot right now.”

The Pirates turn their attention to Forrest County AHS for second round action at home tomorrow evening at 6 p.m. The Aggies are led by two versatile players that are long and have caused problems for other teams. The Aggies are coached by former SSC standout Grayson Timidaiski.

In other boys playoff action, the Bay High Tigers traveled to Quitman and fell 74-48.

Rocks top Irish 15-7 as area diamonds open the season

BY JOSEPH W. GEX, II
STAFF WRITER

This past weekend area diamonds opened their gates for the spring season.

The Saint Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws opened their 2021 season at home against St. Patrick.

The Rocks capitalized on six Irish errors to claim a 15-7 victory.

The game also opened the Brad Corley era at SSC. Corley saw Cole Fletcher throw a strike for the first pitch of the season and leadoff hitter Ethan McNeill line a single to leftfield for the first hit of the year.

SSC took a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning as Kaden Rosetti drive in McNeill with his fielders choice.

The Rocks (1-0) added another run in the bottom of the second as McNeill drove in Hugh LeMasters with his second hit of the game.

SSC added three more runs in the bottom of the third inning as Brandon Rhodes and Keaton Cunningham each tallied a single and Robert Alfonso drew a walk to load the bases. Jackson Montjoy drove in one run and Kyle Stegall tallied two RBIs on his double to make the score 5-0.

St. Patrick collected four runs in the top of the fourth inning when they sent 10 batters to the plate and the Rocks had a throwing error on a called third strike that loaded the bases with one out.

The Rocks added three more runs in the bottom of the fifth inning to push the score to 8-4.

Montjoy led the inning off with a double followed by a single from Stegall and a walk from McNeill to put ducks on the pond. Ethan Jacobi stole home on a called double-steal to make the score 6-4. Connor Ladner reached on an error and later took second base that scored a run followed by a single from Rosetti. Cunningham was hit by a pitch that also plated a run.

St. Patrick added three more runs in the top of the sixth to make the score 8-7. The Rocks put the decision to rest in the bottom of the sixth inning by sending 10 batters to the plate and scoring seven runs to make the final score 15-7. Montjoy highlighted the inning with a single and a double and two RBIs.

SSC head coach Brad Corley commented, “We used four pitchers today but we did plan to do that. The first game is out of the way and I will take it but it showed us a lot about what we need to work on. St. Patrick got hits with runners on and we did not for the most part. We seemed to be out in front of the ball and were pulling it alot. We were anxious, as well. But, we got hits when we needed them. We just need to be more consistent throughout the lineup.”

Montjoy was 3-for-5 with two doubles and three RBIs. McNeill also had two hits for SSC and an RBI. Brandon Rhodes and Rosetti each had two RBIs

In other recent diamond action, Pass Christian beat Picayune 7-5 on Friday and lost to PRC 12-4 on Saturday. Hancock beat Picayune 8-7 on Saturday.

In softball action, Bay High stumbled against St. Martin 13-6 on Saturday.

Arbor Day in the Bay

SEA COAST ECHO

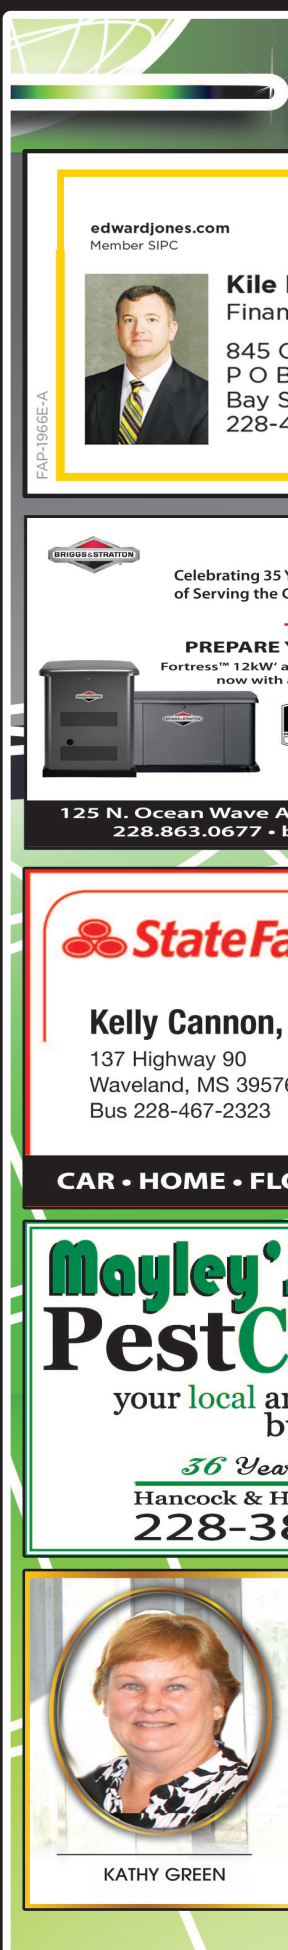

Arbor Day means tree day. Arbor is the Latin word for tree. Arbor Day started in 1872, and it was nationally named in 1972. Arbor Day is typically observed the last Friday in April, but here in Mississippi, because of our climate, we celebrate on the second Friday in February.

The Bay Waveland Garden club annually installs a tree in a prominent location around town. This year the club donated a specimen live oak tree to St. Augustine Seminary in the Bay. The seminary lost one of its registered oaks in Hurricane Zeta and the club offered to replace it. Anita Warner, chair of the Arbor Day committee, organized the event held on February 12. It was a wet cold day but with the help of Raul and Isaac Verduzco, the tree was installed.
